Your council, in one lesson

One person from every department. Your council is the only place the company meets across departments.

THE SEVEN MOMENTS OF EVERY LESSON

▌ yours ▏ you are in the room no bar: not yours

	You bring	You do	You leave behind
1 Board opening	—	The Board walks through the Decision Log.	Note anything that changes what your council agreed.
2 Commitments review	—	Your manager answers for your department. Listen for what was promised to other departments.	—
3 Masterclass	—	The tool of the week.	—
break
4 Management Team	What your council will need from your department.	The seven managers meet without you. Tell yours beforehand what you can promise.	—
5 Councils	Your department's position: what you have, what you need, what you can give.	One person from every department, around one table. Chair, minutes and next meeting are yours to arrange. The MT meets at the same time; a manager may join you later to listen in.	Your council's product, written down: an agreement, a register entry, or a line in the storyline.
6 Department work	What your council settled, and who committed to what.	Back at your own table. Tell your four what you brought back — this is the debrief.	The cross-delivery your department owes another department this week.
7 Board close	What your council needs from your department next lesson.	Your manager says the commitment out loud.	Your department's commitment, in the MT minutes.

NEXT LESSON

THE FIVE COUNCILS

Council	Who sits in it	Makes every lesson
B1 Management Team	the seven Department Managers	the seven commitments — see the MT sheet
B2 Data Council	Data & Interface Officers	Interface Agreements
B3 Technology Council	Technology Officers (six)	the Technology Register
B4 Investment Council	Business Case Officers	the Investment Register
B5 Communication Council	Integration & Communication Officers	one company storyline

- The council always meets before department work.
- Every lesson ends with a commitment; the next opens with the check on it.

A council that writes nothing down has not met. B3 has six members, not seven: Inventory & SCM combines Technology and Business Case in one person, who sits in B4. Your council has a private channel B1–B5.

Three lessons differ: lesson 1 has no review yet, lesson 6 replaces the MT and the councils with the Interim Board Review, and lesson 9 is still being decided.
