The Management Team, in one lesson

You carry the week. Four of the seven moments are yours, and the last one is the one the company hears.

THE SEVEN MOMENTS OF EVERY LESSON

yours · you are in the room · no bar: not yours

NEXT LESSON

	You bring	You do	You leave behind
1 Board opening	The Board Memo for your department.	The Board walks through the Decision Log. You may correct them.	Your Board Memo, with the Board.
2 Commitments review	Last lesson's commitment, and what your department actually handed in.	You answer: met · not met and why · adjusted in advance. Adjusting beforehand costs nothing; staying silent is the only real failure.	Your answer in the minutes. Did another department fail you? A Non-Delivery Notice, pointing at their dated row.
3 Masterclass	—	The tool of the week.	—
break
4 Management Team	What each of your four can have ready, and what they need from other departments.	Report your department in one turn. Then the seven of you write the commitment rows: who · commits to deliver · to whom · by when.	The seven commitment rows in the MT minutes. The minute-taker rotates.
5 Councils	—	The four councils run while you meet, and you finish first. Join one of your choice and listen in.	—
6 Department work	The seven commitments: who owes your department what, and when.	You lead the table. Your four report back from their councils; together you decide what the department delivers.	The cross-delivery your department owes, and to whom. Say it before they leave.
7 Board close	The one thing your department will have ready next lesson.	You say it out loud, for the whole company.	Your commitment in the minutes; the Board logs one line that the seven are recorded.

THE SEVEN DEPARTMENTS — WHO YOU CHASE, AND WHO HOLDS WHAT

Channel	Department	Holds a constraint the other four must pass
A1	Incoming transport	the Compliance File — what the law allows
A2	Storage	the Energy & Capacity File — what the grid and the buildings allow
A3	Orderpicking	—
A4	Outbound transport	—
A5	Inventory & SCM	— (four members, not five)
A6	E-commerce	the Customer Promise — what the customer was promised
A7	Delivery to consumers	—

- The council always meets before department work.
- Every lesson ends with a commitment; the next opens with the check on it.

Two missed commitments without adjusting in advance are a written reason for the Board to make your scope smaller in lesson 6 — one lesson, one sub-assignment, never the cross-delivery.

Three lessons differ: lesson 1 has no review yet, lesson 6 replaces the MT and the councils with the Interim Board Review, and lesson 9 is still being decided.
